THE SUNDAY TIMES

FEATURES

Your wildest dreams

Stop fantasising, start searching. We pick a selection of the most beautiful homes in the world on the market today — with prices starting at just over £300,000

Emma Wells Published: 20 September 2015

New York From £746,000
You don't have to be a banker to live here: over the past decade, the Financial District has become one of the hippest addresses in Manhattan, and at 101 Wall Street, the starchitect Piet Boon has created 52 one- to four-bedroom homes in a reinvented 1931 art-deco building with 27 storeys. All have casement windows and extra-wide grey oak floorboards. Before you hit the office, head for a run or a bike ride on the East River Waterfront Esplanade, only moments away. 00 1 212 747 1011, 101wall.com